Speaker Background

Limiao Jiang:

Limiao Jiang obtained his BSc degree in Applied Chemistry from Huazhong University of Science and Technology in June 2006, and received his PhD degree in Analytical Chemistry from Wuhan Institute of Physics and Mathematics in July 2012. His PhD work, supervised by Prof Huiru Tang, included method developments in NMR based metabonomics and their applications in animal models, i.e. rats with hepatotoxin induced liver injury, and nude mice bearing hepatocellular carcinoma and lung cancer. From July 2012, he started to pursue his postdoctoral research as a Research Associate at Wuhan Institute of Physics and Mathematics. Then, in March 2013, he joined NUS Department of Diagnostic Radiology as a Research Associate to continue his postdoctoral career under the supervision of Prof Thain C Ng.

John Totman:

Head of Imaging Operations, CIRC

PhD, Sir Peter Mansfield Magnetic Resonance Centre, School Physics and Astronomy. University of Nottingham, Nottingham.
