Speaker Background

Dr Evelyn Laurens:

Evelyn is a Research Fellow in the Radiochemistry team at CIRC. She has completed her Bachelor of Biomedical Science, Bachelor of Science degree with Honours and PhD in Chemistry at the University of Melbourne, Australia. Currently she is involved in the validation process of [68Ga]PSMA for clinical studies.

Caroline Wong:

Caroline majored in Psychology at the Singapore Management University's School of Social Sciences. After graduation, she joined the Computational Functional Anatomy Lab in the Bioengineering Department of the National University of Singapore (NUS) under Dr Qiu Anqi, where she worked mainly on projects related to aging. Thereafter she joined the A*STAR-NUS Clinical Imaging Research Centre (CIRC) and has since been supporting a wide range of fMRI studies. She is interested in better characterising the neurocognitive decline arising from clinical conditions.
